LEWIS, REBUFFED, SPURS AUTO STRIKE

By EUGENE KELLY

Washington, Jan. 23 (U.S. Press)—President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis, fiery "yes" union chief, were on the verge of an open break today over the automobile strike crisis.

Battle lines were drawn for the most serious labor war the auto industry has faced as both sides wrapped all peace negotiations.

Indirectly rebuffed by the President, Lewis argued in his "struggle" with General Motors, Lewis ordered identification of the "sit-down" strike.

ENCOURAGES STRIKERS

At the same time, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., General Motors president, in a statement issued in New York, warned Lewis that "every effort" will be made to open the plants "soon."

Confronting the industry' refusal from the White House, Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization backing the strike, ordered his strike leaders back to Detroit and Flint.

Lewis' telegram had a long message of encouragement in the "sit-down" strikers in Flint, Mich., to whom he pledged the support of the fifteen unions lined up with the C. I. O.

The President at his press conference went to the unusual length of permitting direct quotes which he made this time comment on the strike.

"Of course, I have no further sense than you have," he said.

"Of course, I think that in the interest of peace there come conversations when statements, conversations and hostilities are not in order."

The President was asked about Lewis' declaration that some labor leaders had been in the "sit-down" strike.

270,000 BY FLOODS

PERIL GROWS; VICTIMS NEED FOOD, FUEL

(By the Associated Press)

Freezing weather, hunger and dwindling supplies of drinking water intensified the suffering of the nation's flood refugees today as the Red Cross launched a campaign for $2,000,000 to aid an estimated 270,000 homeless or needy.

But the cold brought hope of succor to the ravaged valley of the swollen Ohio river, most destructive of the overland streams in the 12 states of the flood belt.

had to destroy the Soviet regime, the prosecution further charged Leon Trotsky, former Bolshevik chairman, now in Mexico, with playing a leading role in the conspiracy.

On instructions of Trotsky, the indictment charged, Haged and his associates sought to "hasten an armed attack by 'imperialist forces' against the U. S. S. R. They did this, it was stated, to enable opponents of the Stalin regime to reach to power through defeat of the Soviet Union.

"Terroristic groups" were charged with regularly supplying the German and Japanese governments with secret information of the greatest value.

Trotsky was accused of using defectors for getting the Russian Communist World to fire the attack on the Soviet Union.

LETTER EVIDENCE

The state's most important evidence, the indictment charged, was a letter allegedly written by Trotsky to Haged, dated December 1935, calling for "immediate assassination of Stalin."

This letter Haged presented in evidence in the trial of the Soviet Union, the indictment charged, as evidence of the conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet government.

The letter, it was charged, also contained evidence of the conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet government.

The indictment charged that Haged, Trotsky, and the other defendants were engaged in a conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet government.

They emphasize the subjective incorporation, and publicity of the disposition made of duties received from members. They refer to the British Trades Union of 1937 for guidance.

There has been sentiment in quarters for a national federation of company unions in key industries, but since the adverse effect of the National Labor Relations Board in the Internationalvester case, there has been doubt as to whether company unions fulfill the requirements of the Wagner act, whose constitutionality remains to be tested.

Though the technique for better industrial relationships has not yet been perfected, management is giving more thought to the human side of its operations than ever before. Management is listening for grievances, and trying many instances voluntarily to make them.

They look upon the willful of a substantial proportion of employees in strike as an indication that something has been done which might not have been or something omitted which should have been done.

The effect of this is to create a market for the services of so-called experts in industrial relationships. Universities in key centers have been setting up industrial relationship clinics. Rockefeller funds have been largely used in endowing such studies.
